 Determine if there is a Right of First Refusal, if so fill date accordingly.

 Seller should check with attorney about potential MLO licensing requirements

* If possession is to be after closing, brokers should help negotiate Post-Closing Occupancy Agreement at time of contract.

MEC is the date that the Contract or if applicable, counterproposal is signed by all of the parties. Make sure to calculate the deadlines after MEC is determined. It is a good idea to verify MEC with the other broker by email to ensure there are no misunderstandings.

Information provided by Damian L. Cox, Esq. for informational purposes only. Any questions should be directed to your employing broker or a real estate attorney.

While this guide is to help brokers with suggested/customary deadlines, deadlines should be ultimately decided based on the client's needs. Many times deadlines are determined based on the bargaining power of the buyer/seller.
